ACCUSED OF ASSAULT

ON 9-YEAR-OLD GIRL

John Connors, Over Forty, Sentenced By Jury At Louisville.

Louisville, Ky., May 3.—John Connor's life must pay the forfeit for the assault on the girl committed on Rosaline Grabousky, aged 9, in the yard of the parish school of St. Peter's Catholic church February 19, last. The jury was given the case shortly after 7 o'clock tonight and returned a verdict in half an hour. Connors displayed no emotion when the verdict was read. A brother, James Connors, broke down and wept. The latter is an attorney and he begged the jury to be lenient. The convicted man, a carpenter by trade, is over forty years old.

Mrs. S. E. Yancy and daughter have returned from Texas, where they spent several months.

FRESH BREAK

Inundates More Towns Down In Louisiana.

Torras, La., May 3.—A lake of water covers the town of Torras to a depth ranging from two to six feet, and the Mississippi flood waters are pouring through the crevasse which occurred in the levees late yesterday at the rate of twelve miles an hour. This torrent of flood water has covered the little town of Lettsworth, Innis, Blenvenue and Smithland and is rapidly flooding Pointe Coupee parish between the Mississippi and Atchafalaya rivers. The crevasse tonight is about 800 feet wide.

FISCAL COURT IN SESSION

And A Number Of Contracts Are Let For New Turnpikes.

SWALLOW SPRING TROUBLES

A Road Poll Of One Dollar Levied On Those Subject To Road Work.

The regular monthly meeting of the Fiscal Court was held this week, two days, Wednesday and Thursday, being consumed in disposing of the business before the body.

Turnpikes were ordered constructed, as follows:

Four miles from end of present pike to Fruit Hill, to be paid out of the road and bridge fund, and out of the subscription list of residents along said road.

Four miles 9 foot pike on the Tobacco road, with dirt road along side.

One mile on the Princeton road, beginning at the end of the present pike, and same on the Buttermilk road.

One and a half miles of twelve-foot pike on Moseley Bridge and Pembroke road, provided the residents along said road will pay one-third of cost of building same.

One mile on the Ducker Mill road.

Two and a half miles on the Cadiz road, beginning at the end of the present pike and extending to the Trigg county line, eliminating Gracey.

One and a half miles on the Pee Dee road, extending from the end of the present pike.

It was ordered that a road poll of $1 be levied on all male inhabitants in the county subject to work upon the public roads of the county, for the year 1912.

The road supervisor was instructed to employ a competent engineer to survey the most feasible route for draining Swallow Spring, near Beverly, and to ascertain the cost of digging the ditch, the land owners around this spring agreeing to pay one half the cost of the survey.

NINTH ONE OF THE BEST

Athenaeum Banquet a Brilliant and Enjoyable Society Event.

COL. HENRY TOASTMASTER.

Nearly One Hundred Members and Guests Graced the Occasion.

The ninth annual banquet of the Athenaeum, held at Hotel Latham from 8:30 to 12 o'clock Thursday night was in point of attendance and in the arrangements the best of the series. Covers were laid for 100 and there were 94 seats occupied, a few being prevented from attending by pressing engagements at the last moment. The guests as usual assembled in the parlors, and entered the dining room shortly before nine o'clock. There were two long tables. The toastmaster was seated at the west end of the table on the south side of the room, and the other speakers were seated one at each of the remaining end chairs and one midway on each side, next to the walls.

Dr. Edmund Harrison pronounced the invocation. The meal was served in three courses and was disposed of by 10:30 and the speeches began. The speakers were at their best, the weather was ideal, the company a happy and congenial one and the occasion was in all respects a delightful one.

Interurbans as Value In-creasers.

With the multiplication of electric lines connecting small towns with each other and with the cities, inevitably comes a rapid rise in value of the farms which lie along the route of the roads. This is a well-known fact, yet it is not amiss to refresh the public mind on the subject occasionally.

Indiana stands way up in the list of States with large mileage of interurban lines, and the experience of that people is worth something.
On the matter of increased land values since the line connecting Louisville, Ky., and Shelbyville, Ind.,
went into operation, the Newcastle, Ind., Local tells us of numerous deals in real estate which show plainly not alone profit to the owners of the properties, but to the State at large in the way of increased tax values. One farm of 200 acres which had previously sold at $75 an acre has been disposed of at $190; another brought $200 an acre within three months after having been sold for $140. A farm within five miles of Shelbyville which, before the interurban was built, passed title at $25 an acre, has just changed hands at $125.
These are but a few of the instances cited by our Indiana contemporary from its own knowledge, and they serve to emphasize the shortsightedness of those landowners who nod back when asked to aid in the building of a trolley line.—

LIKE BREAKING OF OLD TIES

Hotel Guest Hated to Leave His Old Room, but He Had a Good Reason for Moving.

Jimmy Britt brought a new version of an old story back with him from London. According to Britt, he was standing at the desk of a London hotel, when an immaculately dressed and deeply immersed gentleman approached. The last corner screwed a monocle in his eye with vast difficulty, and looked fixedly at the clerk. By and by he seemed to recognize that dignitary. "I," said he with some difficulty, "want to change my room. Bah Jova. I have room 312. Don't ye know?"

The clerk bowed before him.
"Very well, your lordship," said he.
"I find that room 314, next door to 312, is empty. Will that suit your highness?"

"Very—hic—well, indeed," said the monocled one, deliberately. "I will—hic—go up at once." And then, to the amazement of the clerk and Mr. Britt, he placed his neatly sleeked head on the counter, and the monocle gushed off his eye on a torrent of tears. "Got to leave dear old room 312," he sobbed. "Bes' old room in the house. Fond memories cling 'round it. But I must leave it—'cause I just set dear old 312 afire!"

STILL ABLE TO CATCH RATS

Cat Seemingly Understood Derogatory Remark and Proved Falsity of Charge.

A number of years ago a small,
white kitten strayed into a provision store, so forlorn in appearance it especially appealed to the sympathies of those in charge, and moreover such a good little thing, never jumping onto the bench or anywhere else it ought not to be, they decided to keep it. Eight or nine years afterward, one night, about closing-up time, a large rat came into view, but the cat did not pay any attention to it, or seem to care anything about it. The proprietor said, "That cat is getting too old to catch rats; we shall have to get some traps and set around here." The next morning, when the store was opened, the body of a big rat was discovered lying on the meat bench with its head toward the chopping block, a place in which it could not be seen, and on two or three mornings of that same week again the body of a large rat was found in the same way, as if the cat said, "I can catch rats if I want to." Mr. L. says no one could tell him after that that a cat didn't understand what was said.—Our Four-footed Friends.

BATHING A LUXURY THERE.

"Uncle Joe" Cannon, at dinner
in Washington, said of an opponent:
"His arguments are as dry as the climate of West Australia. I met a man from West Australia, and he told me that water was so scarce there nobody ever washed except when it rained."
"He said that a West Australian would often, seeing clouds in the sky, strip and cover himself with a thick layer of soap in preparation for the downpour, and then, by jove, the clouds would drift away, the sun would blaze forth in a blue sky again, and there would be nothing for the poor fellow to do but scrape off the soap with a knife, dress and go back to work again."

QUEER FORM OF GAMBLING.

John Ashton, in his "History of Gambling in England," gives a curious instance of betting on lives.
"About 60 years ago there was an under writer at Lloyd's named Thornton, who was fond of writing speculative risks. He had a bet with a fellow underwriter that he should pay him $5,000 for every child the queen bore, but if there should be twins at any time then Mr.
Thornton was to be paid $100,000."
Thornton's wager cost him $45,000.

ALMOST EQUINE.

"James writes in that he now
owns a self-starting automobile, Ezra," said the kind old lady to her husband.
"Humph!" replied Ezra. "They're gittin' them things down so fine that they'll be taking fright an' running away the fast thing we know!"

POOR KID.

"No, you musn't play with your nice new horse; you would spoil it.
I'll give it to you when it's broken."
—Pete Mala.

SHOWING NEED OF POVERTY

Writer Points Out How Its Banishment Would Affect Certain Classes of People.

Poverty has been designed by an All-Seeing Providence in order to make the rich humble. Without poverty, the rich would not know how well off they were, and if they did not know this, they would have no opportunity to sympathize with the poor; thus, no condition of humility would be possible.

Poverty is also useful in many other ways; it enables sociologists to write books, and, by constant practice, gives them remarkable facility; it affords a splendid field for the theologian, and helps him very much in his illustrations.

Poverty helps government; for without government there would be no political parties, and political parties could not exist without poverty, as there would be no votes to buy.

Poverty is necessary to produce sentiment. If there were no poverty, sentiment would go begging. It would then have to be expended exclusively on members of the opposite sex, as a rule, they don't need it, except when they also need money.

Poverty is considered unnecessary by some, but that is only because they do not understand. Without poverty there would be nothing to live for, nobody to be sorry about,
and no one to witness our comfort.
—Thomas L. Masson, in Lippincott's Magazine.

DISCOVERIES AT POMPEII.

A dispatch from Naples states that some interesting discoveries are being made in "The Street of Abundant," which recently was unearthed and which leads to the amphitheater at Pompeii. In one shop there was found a row of wine jars so placed that it would seem the vintner was in the act of pouring wine from one into another when overtaken by waves of lava, A. D. 79.

There also, hermetically closed, was a cauldron containing water. On walls bordering the road are many political notices, relating to elections.

Excavations will be continued, and more interesting discoveries are expected.

WHY PIGS' FEET ARE SPLIT.

Secretary Stimson of the war department surveyed the government possessions at Fort Sheridan and passed the old canteen. This is a compound now in which wireless drinks are served—also food.

On the outside of the building a champion of the republic had written with a piece of chalk:

"Pigs' feet five cents apiece and fifteen cents a yard."

Mr. Stimson was inspired to say:
"I never have realized before why pigs' feet are split. It is possible to buy a yard and a half."

PLAYED ON ENEMY'S NERVES

Subtle Scheme That Was Employed by the Japanese During Siege of Port Arthur.

The Japanese are ingenious, if a little diabolical. A Russian officer named Lulitski, in a little book lately published on his experience in the Russo-Japanese war, illustrates both phases of their character. During one of the Japanese attacks on Port Arthur the assailants made use of wooden hand-rattles such as night watchmen in Japan still use, and which some of us remember as "police-men's rattles." These things produce a magnified crackling noise exactly like the sound of machine guns. This idea was not so much to deceive the Russians as to the number of machine guns in action, but to shatter the nerves of the defenders and thus bring about the psychological collapse which plays such an important part on the modern battlefield. And M. Lulitski, who was then in close touch with the Livonian infantry, frankly acknowledges that this contrivance had a marked effect on his men and contributed substantially to the ultimate victory of the Japanese.

LIKED AEROPLANE TO BIRD

Indian's Comment, on His First Sight of Airship, Brief and Very Much to the Point.

Aviator Rodgers, while on his way to the Pacific coast, came down for gasoline one Sunday on an ordinary looking New York farm.

He didn't know where he was until a man came across the field and his face showed him to be an Indian. Rodgers then knew he was on the Seneca Indian reservation at Red House, and the brave approaching happened to be Chief Bishop.

An aeroplane was a new thing to the Indian, and while men of his race began to pour into the field from the neighboring country as fast as their ramshackle buckboards and ponies would permit them, the chief inspected his visitor's sky vehicle. After he had finished his examination the Indian turned to the aviator and said:

"Ugh, big bird. Ugh, much heap too dam big bird."

TURTLE GETS THE HEN.

While a man was fishing in the Wissahickon creek recently he noticed a small speckled hen on the other bank leisurely pattering about in the shallow water in search of a meal. Suddenly a slight disturbance was noticed in the water a few feet below the hen, and the head of a large snapping turtle appeared above the surface for an instant. After a brief interval there was a splash, a flutter of wings and a series of loud cackles. The snapper had the chicken's leg in his strong jaws, while the hen, with her remaining leg, clutched the root of a tree overhanging the water. Then came a tug of war. The hen made a gallant fight, but she had to let go, and a moment later the turtle went down and disappeared beneath the water with his prize.—Philadelphia Enquirer.

MAKING USE OF HER LATIN.

There is in a certain Florida city a woman librarian with a fondness for Latin phrases that sometimes require more than a knowledge of Latin to fathom. Recently a visitor to the library inquired pleasantly how she had spent her vacation, to which the librarian replied idly: "Oh, I just took a little jaunt up to New York via train and came home vice versa."

"You returned—how?" gasped the visitor.

"Vice versa," repeated the librarian blandly. "By steamer, you know."—Saturday Evening Post.

AFTER THE THEATER.

The convivial person helped off the car at his corner, discerned a uniform, and, approaching it with some dignity, handed the wearer a card.

"What's this for?" demanded the police officer.

"Ain't you usher to this street?" asked the convivial person. "Please show me to my seat."

HOW IT HAPPENED.

"It's a bad man. Takes four men to handle him when I get started."

"I saw one man handle you yesterday over on the next ranch."

"Well, they happened to be short-handed over there."

ARE NOT SUCH GOOD "MIXERS"

Writer Says Men Think They Get Acquainted Easily, but Really They Don't.

Edna Ferber writes a fiction story in the American Magazine in which the principal character is Emma McChesney, a traveling saleswoman. On one of her trips she took her son with her, a boy of seventeen. This boy had to spend the night with a stranger in a country hotel. Next morning his mother asked him about his roommate. The boy knew very little, not even the name of the man with whom he stayed. Whereupon Emma McChesney broke out as follows:

"Men are the cussedest creatures. This chap occupied the same room with you last night and you don't even know his name. Funny! If two strange women had found themselves occupying the same room for a night they wouldn't have got to the kimono and back hair stage before they would know not only each other's name but they'd have tried on each other's hats, swapped corset cover patterns, found mutual friends living in Dayton, O., taught each other a new Irish croquet stitch, showed their family photographs, told how their married sister's little girl nearly died with swollen glands and divided off the mirror into two sections to paste their newly washed handkerchiefs on. Don't tell me men have a genius for friendship."

HARD ON HER

She (fishing for a compliment)—This is the third dance you've had with me. Why don't you ask some of the other girls?

He—To tell the truth, I'm such a bum dancer that I'm ashamed to ask them.

THE FIRST STOVE.

The most important uses of fire were taught by fire itself. As the primitive man stood near the flames of the burning tree and felt their pleasant glow he learned that fire may add to bodily comfort; and when the flames swept through a forest and overtook a deer and baked it, he learned that fire might be used to improve the quality of his food. The hint was not lost. He took a burning torch to his cave or hut and kindled him a fire on his floor of earth. His dwelling filled with smoke, but he could endure the discomfort for the sake of the toothsome of the cooked meats. After a time a hole was made in the roof of the hut, and through this hole the smoke passed out. Here was the first stove. The primitive stove was the entire house; the floor was the fireplace and the hole in the roof was the chimney. The word "stove" originally meant "a heated room."

PREOCCUPATION.

"Do you think the automobile has a demoralizing influence?"

"I'm afraid it has," replied Mr. Cluggins. "When a man has to remember how fast he can go in different parts of town, and the rules about displaying numbers and sounding the horn at crossings, and letting smoke escape from the exhaust, and keeping his lamps in order, and cutting out the muffler, and various other things he's liable to be so preoccupied that the ten commandments don't get their reasonable share of attention."

AUSTRALIAN ENGLISH.

The Australians are evolving a new English language of their own. With three of their words—"bar-racking," "larrikin" and "kangaroo"—we are all familiar, but there are hundreds of others to be found in the dictionary of "Australian-English" compiled by Professor Morris. The Sydney Bulletin is offering a prize for the "best sonnet written in the Australian language." That is to say, a sonnet that would not be understood outside of Australia.

NOT ALTOGETHER AN ANGEL

Beautiful Child Had a Will of Her Own, Also a Temper, as She Abundantly Proved.

A tall, well-gowned young woman entered one of the city department stores, accompanied by an angelic looking little girl of three years. "What a beautiful child!" the shoppers murmured as she passed.

From one counter to another the two went, purchasing gloves, a white lace veil, some rose pink ribbon, that the mother held under her daughter's chin and then looked at her child, to see the effect, which the saleswoman declared perfect.

All the time the child was sweetly acquiescent in all her mother's plans.

Once or twice she spoke quietly to her mother, who answered her by saying, "Perhaps, later," and smiled.

Suddenly a change came over the angelic face. It was like a great black thundercloud passing over the face of the sick.

"I won't stop teasing," shrieked the Angelic One, "I won't. I want chocolate ice cream! I will have it! I will! I will!" The voice rose in a shriek of rage and determination. Then she threw her dainty self to the floor and rolled over and over.

FIT GIRLS TO EARN LIVING

Parents Never Can Know That Daughters May Not Have to Make Their Own Way.

Every girl in the world should be fitted to earn a living, even though she does not have to look out for herself. Life is uncertain, but money has a way of deserting one without warning. Only in the few cases is its loss due to circumstances which might have been avoided. One expects to pay the price of carelessness or recklessness, but nobody is ever fully prepared for unforeseen disaster.

Many a woman has blessed the memory of parents who had been sufficiently thoughtful to prepare them for emergencies. Children show signs of special ability at an early age and in boys it is cultivated with an eye to the future—the inevitable time of bread-winning. Girls are less fortunate, for many of them have to go out into the world without special advancement and with little thought of future advancement, so the occasional woman with an abundance of persistence climbs to a safe position and the great mass of struggling women snatch what they can from chance.—Milwaukee Evening Wisconsin.

LABOUCHERE'S TEMPERANCE.

Mr. T. P. O'Connor, who knew his subject well, attributed the long life of Mr. Labouchere, the editor, to temperance in eating and drinking. He rarely touched wine, and then only in the form of claret and water; but he was intemperate in one direction—that of cigarette smoking. He would gulp down an egg and a cup of tea and stick a cigarette in his mouth, from which a successor was never absent throughout the day. That long life of Labouchere enabled him to tell stories of Bismarck in his unknown days, of the original of Thackeray's marquis of Steyne and of Disraeli's Lord Mounmouth. One of the genial cynicisms of Labouchere which ought not to be allowed to die is that uttered at a great banquet given by Sir Henry Irving. "To think," said the actor to the journalist, "that I was once getting £5 a week from you!" "Three pounds," corrected the journalist.—London Chronicle.

HOW PAIN WAS CONQUERED.

It was a baker's son who saved the human race from endless pain. Sir James Simpson was the first man to discover that chloroform could be used to render persons unconscious for the purpose of performing operations. Until almost the middle of the last century when anyone underwent surgical operation there was no way in which the patient could be rendered unconscious. Mr. Simpson first practiced it upon himself, and one day was found lying unconscious on the floor of his study, where he had fallen after inhaling it.

Might Be Dead Today

Garden City, Kas.—In a letter from Mrs. James Hammer, of this city, she says: "I firmly believe that I would not be alive today, if it were not for Cardui. I had been a sufferer from womanly troubles all my life, until I found that great remedy. I feel that I can't praise it too highly." Are you a woman; suffering from some of the troubles, to which a woman is peculiarly liable? If so, why not try Cardui, the woman's tonic? You can rely on Cardui. It is purely vegetable, perfectly harmless, and acts gently but surely, without bad after-effects. "It will help you." Ask your druggist.

Admiral Southerland's Find.

Quidnuncs at Washington, those gentlemen who are always asking, "What now?" enjoyed a considerable thrill of mystery and curiosity in discussing the recent report of Rear-Admiral Southerland, who in the "West Virginia" visited Palmyra Island and its fifty-one lesser isles, lying about one thousand miles southwest of Honolulu, about ninety miles from Fanning Island.

The Palmyra Group was proclaimed part of Hawaii in 1882, but since it has appeared to the State Department only recently that Great Britain had annexed them in 1899, Rear-Admiral Southerland was dispatched with the "West Virginia" to explore the group thoroughly and especially to search for any public monuments conflicting with the United States' claim to the islands. His report on this point is very clear and explicit, to wit: "The results are definite in making it clear that no flag pole, notice-board, monument, or other surface object indicating an endeavor to claim sovereignty on the part of any nation exists on this island." No living person was found in the Archipelago, although bird life abounded.

The most mysterious find was a little settlement of three huts, in a densely wooded slope of Islet Number 51, the presence of which was thoroughly screened from anything but the closest search. Two of the huts were roofed with corrugated iron and one with thatch; and there were stoves, tables, shelves, jars, bottles and other evidences of a continued occupation at no very distant period. One hut with a new door and good lock contained a large number of empty cedar cases of Oriental make, several of which had been labelled by pasting a slip of Japanese paper on the ends and writing over it. One case was thus labelled: "This case contains ammunition. May 7."

And now the "Quidnuncs" are asking themselves and one another, "What do these things mean? For what purpose was some designing descendant of the Samurai housing himself and his associates with a consignment of potential ammunition and keeping a 'rowling regimental eye,' as Mulvaney would say, on the wide Pacific, and a rapidly approaching May 7?"

While there is no harbor at which a vessel might coal or a naval base be permanently established, the group could be used for the accumulation of supplies, or the rendezvous of an expedition intended to carry out a design dependent for its success on secrecy.

Now Uncle Sam takes another flock of Pacific Isles under his wing. "Affairs and Folks" Joe Mitchell

This is what the League stands for—not the betterment of the few, but of the entire citizenship of the city.

WHERE IS HARVEY?

Made Husband Leave Her After Ceremony and Now Can Not Find Him.

New York, May 3.—Mrs. Harvey O. Brown, who in October, 1910, as a Miss Adams obtained countrywide publicity when she paid Brown, a professional building wrecker, $200 to marry her, obtained Supreme Court authority today to serve notice by publication that she wished to annul the marriage.

The young woman chose Brown as her husband from a list of two dozen applicants after she had announced in a Washington newspaper that she would give $200 to any man who would marry her on condition that he would leave her immediately after the ceremony. She explained that she was obliged to get married or forfeit a large inheritance "in the old country."

THE ASTOR FORTUNE.

Young Widow Gets None Of Vast Estate.

Vincent Astor, by the will of his father, John Jacob Astor, who died so heroically in the Titanic disaster, will inherit the bulk of the vast fortune of the deceased multimillionaire. Young Vincent has been given complete control of $60,000,000 by the tragic end of his father.

Miss Muriel Astor, daughter of Mrs. Ava Willing Astor and John Jacob Astor, will inherit $15,000,000, if there is no son born to the present Mrs. John Jacob Astor. In the event of a posthumous child being borne by the young widow, Muriel will only receive one-half of her original inheritance, the other $7,500,000 going to the new heir.

The fact that the young widow of the heroic multimillionaire, who lost his life in the Titanic disaster, was not left a dollar of the huge Astor fortune by the will of her husband, afforded considerable surprise in New York and London, but was explained by the announcement that just previous to her marriage to Mr. Astor, his bride, who was then Madeline Force, subscribed to the custom of the Astor family, and signed a waiver of her dower rights for a $200,000 cash settlement.

The old building has been growing more dilapidated every year and the congregation decided to replace it with a better house.

Fitchburg, Mass., May 3.—Friedrich Fossick, of this city, one of the eight Republican delegates-at-large, said today that Col. Roosevelt has done the square thing," said Mr. Fossick, "but I have nothing to say as to my personal action until I learn more of the developments. However, I feel as free as ever, as Col. Roosevelt's action in no way binds me."

A cordial invitation is extended to the citizens of Hopkinsville and Christian county to attend these services.

BOUNTIES PROVED A BURDEN

State of Maine Forced to Give Up Campaign for Extinction of Nuisances.

The vicious wild animals which still remain within the borders of Maine are a source of considerable public expense. These are the bear, wolves and bobcats, upon which the state pays a bounty.

The reward from the commonwealth for killing a bear or wolf is $5, and that for a wildcat is $2. Last year the state paid out $595 for bears that were slain and $826 for wildcats, but for several years no bounty has been sought for wolves, as those animals are rare now.

Maine's bounties have been classified as constructive and destructive, says Maine Woods, and their history is a long one. At one time the state tried to encourage the raising of corn and wheat in this way and paid out $200,000 before it found the expense too great.

It also tried to foster the silk-worm and beet-sugar industries, and for the latter expended $7,000. The first destructive bounty was inaugurated in 1830, when the legislature sought to rid the state of crows. The granting of $15,000 within a short time for bounties on crows, however, proved too much.

Wanted Never Smoked.

M. Guizot, the French historian, walking in one of the public gardens of Paris, noticed he was being followed by a disreputable looking and badly dressed individual. Guizot was puzzled, but instead of showing alarm he calmly sat down when he had arrived at his favorite seat. The ruffian, without any hesitation, came and sat down beside him and gave the historian so fierce a look as to have disconcerted a less timid man. But with a delightful nonchalance Guizot took out his cigar case, abstracted a cigar, and slowly lit it.

The effect of this action upon his companion was remarkable. With a scowl the man suddenly rose and, muttering to himself, "The man I want to kill never smokes," walked rapidly away. A week later the historian read in the newspapers that this same individual had been arrested for a violent attack upon a public official who bore a strong likeness to Guizot. The famous writer went home and smoked a big cigar in honor of his narrow escape.

ESCAPED FROM BUSH FIRE.

By a mad bareback gallop, the wife and daughter of a large wheat buyer of Mylor, South Australia, just escaped a horrible death, a short time ago, from bush fires raging in the district. The two women were alone when the fire approached their home, and before they realized it the flames were licking the garden of the house. The building quickly caught fire, and the two, gathering up some clothing, ran to the stable, where they found a mare almost paralyzed with fear. They mounted bareback, the mother in front and the daughter behind. Guiding the animal with their hands they galloped towards the river. There they jumped from the horse into the water, and stood neck deep, making frequent plunges till the fire passed.

VIOLENT POISON NOT FATAL.

While they are elated at their success in saving the child's life, physicians at St. Agnes' hospital, Philadelphia, marvel at the survival of a seven-year-old boy, who the other day swallowed seven strychnine tablets containing one-fortieth grain each. The child's sister had a bottle of the tablets in her room, having been advised to take a quantity of the drug at intervals by her doctor. While the family was at dinner the boy saw the bottle with the shiny pills in it standing on a shelf and wanted to taste them. He climbed on a chair and obtained the bottle. The first tablet tasted like sugar and he ate another. Then he ate a third until seven were consumed. Then he fell off the chair.

THE LITTLE MAN.

"Here, my little man, is a penny for you. Now what do you propose to do with it?"

"I guess I'll buy an Oriental rug for ma and keep the change to spend on myself," replied the little man.

Luke Mathews complained last night that his supper disagreed with him. He says if it wasn't that though it would be his wife.

Jefferson Potlocks feels safe for the coming summer, he having drunk so much licker since last year that he has a paid-up policy of insurance against snake bites.

Time certainly flies. It doesn't seem like it's been but a few weeks since Yam Sims got a haircut.

The editor of the Tickville Tidings announces through his columns this week that he will allow nobody to talk for publication until he gets in his new supply of quotation marks.

Fit Smith dropped a jug of licker in Gimlet creek while trying to walk the foot log yesterday. Seining is now the order of the day in this community.

The store at Rye Straw was entered by burglars a few nights ago. The robber showed his shrewdness by waiting until everybody was asleep before committing the crime, and he left nothing by which the Deputy Constable could get a description of him.

Fletcher Hemstep, who made quite a favorite impression as an inventor last summer when he contrived a flea trap, took it out yesterday and is greasing it up, getting it ready to set in the postoffice, where it will be thoroughly tried out. Then if it works all right it will be put in operation for the summer at the Dog Hill church.

Sim Flinders brought to the post-office today the first house fly of the season. This adds another feather to Sim's cap. He is the first in everything. Last fall he heard the first cricket holler, and a little later was the first man in the community to observe that it was snowing.

Poke Easley today figured it up that his great grandfather would have been about one hundred and forty years old if he was still living. This breaks all records for longevity in this locality.

Gander Creek is lower at this season of the year than it has ever before been known, nearly all of the water in it having been washed away by the recent floods.

Tobe Moseley has gone over to the Calf Ribs community to look for some seed from the celebrated wandering gourd vine that created so much wonder in that section last summer. This vine, once it sets into growing wanders around over all the adjoining farms, and is very little trouble to the owner, it being never at home. When the frost begins to fall and the gourds get yellow then the owner draws in the vine and gathers the crop.

Slim Pickens will probably accept a lucrative position with a saw mill near Tickville, he having written them a letter yesterday asking them for a job, offering to work for almost nothing.

Last night Sidney Hocks in his dreams saw some large, mysterious looking animal setting in front of the blacksmith shop. Though he looked closely he failed to identify it, and he will go to sleep early tonight in an effort to more thoroughly inspect it.

Atlas Peck has been clearing up his throat this week getting ready to sing at the Hog Ford church next Sunday.

Isaac Hellwanger is digging a cistern at his house. He would get along faster but he forgets to throw out the dirt every time.

Prof. Sap Spradlen lectured at Tickville Saturday night on the Mississippi River. The lecture was interesting though necessarily long.

Miss Flutie Belcher now blushes as she approaches the postoffice, she having gotten into communication with an unknown correspondent. He lives in Kansas, has a slim, black mustache, and uses the Spencerian system.

Declamatory Contest.

Twenty-seven schools sent contestants to the contest for the Vanderbilt gold medal at Nashville yesterday. The speeches were in progress during the day and the contest closed last night. Henry Eager, of this city, was one of the contestants. Prof. Herschel Long went with him Thursday night.

NO POSSIBILITY OF TRADE

Good Reason Why Traveler Could Not Encourage Degraded Desire for Opium.

Dr. W. E. Gell, the explorer, was talking about the Chinese love of opium.

"The Chinaman from this province," said Dr. Gell, "is always telling you what an opium fiend the Chinaman from that province is, and vice versa. There's a story about it."

"A Su man was condemning the opium excesses of the Flowery Miao. He said that he was once traveling in the Flowery Miao's country, and in desert region a Flowery Miao overtook him and said:

"Stranger, I will give you my coat for one pipe of opium."

"But the Su man refused. So the Flowery Miao said:

"Stranger, for a pipe of opium I will give you my coat and my jade ring."

"Still the Su man refused, and the Flowery Miao then said:

"Stranger, give me a little opium. See, I offer you my coat, my jade ring and even my chain of gold for it."

"At this point a listener said to the Su man impatiently:

"Well, did you give him the opium or not?"

"Give him the opium?" snorted the Su man. "Give him the opium! And me with 30 miles to go and only enough opium for about 15 pipes for myself!"

GIVES FACTORY TO WORKMEN.

Good fortune has befallen the employees of a wholesale boot and shoe maker, in Paris. The manufacturer is a self-made man, and for over forty years has worked harder than any of his men. Today he is a millionaire, but has neither wife nor children to share his riches. Not long ago he resolved to hand over the works to his employees, and under his instructions the lawyer drew up a deed transferring the building and plant and stock to 50 of the men who had helped him to make his fortune. This is equivalent to a gift of about $400,000, or an average of $8,000 to each employee. The donor, however, stipulates that for the next three years the direction of the factory shall remain in his hands and none of those who benefit will be at liberty to realize his share before the end of that period.

WHY WE SING.

Why does anyone desire to sing? To express feeling and emotion. Why does anyone study the technique of singing? In order to gain such understanding of the laws governing his voice that he may use it to express the emotion there is within him. Many students seem to lose sight of this fundamental fact, and, alas, many more never appear to have heard it! They have some notion that if they learn to produce fairly good tones that this will in some mysterious way make singers of them. They are mistaken. They will never become singers, no matter what technical skill they may acquire, unless they have something in them to express.

GALLANT LABORER.

"Oh, thank you," exclaimed an elderly lady to a laborer who surrendered his seat in a crowded tramcar—"thank you, very much!"

"That's all right, mum," was the rejoinder. As the lady sat down the chivalrous laborer added:

"Wot I ses is, a man never ort to let a woman stand. Some men never gets up unless she's pretty out you see, mum, it don't make no difference to me."

ELECTIONS

In Progress To Choose Trustees
For Public Schools.

Two elections for school trustees are in progress in the city to-day.

The poll for the election of three white teachers is in the Council Chamber. A. M. Wallis, A. H. Clark, Jas. Breathitt Jr., any Holton Cock are the officers in charge. The "old Board" ticket, Messrs. J. P. Braden, Ira L. Smith and L. E. Fowler have no announced opposition.

The colored school poll is in the circuit court room and Walter Robinson, Sam Bronaugh, Wm. Lunderman and Robt. Williams are officers in charge. The present trustees, Frank Boyd, Wm. Norman and A. Holmes, have no opposition for re-election.

The polls will close at 4 p. m.

GETTING READY

Leaders For Kitty Have Been Picked.

Of the six clubs in the Kitty league, four have selected their managers. Hopkinsville has not announced its leader, but the magnates are dickering for the services of a competent man. Evansville, Ind., the newest arrival in the league, is also without a leader, but a competent pilot will be secured. Carl Pace will lead Cairo, Ill., while Offa Neal will be at the helm of the Henderson club. Both were former big league players and will gather some strong material for a club. Senter Reiney, leader of the Fulton club last season, has transferred his entire bunch of pennant-winning players from Fulton to Clarksville, Tenn., and will be in the fight. John Nairn, of Danville, Ill., will be manager of Paducah, and the Paducah fans hope to see a flag fluttering, as he has won the rags for Vincennes and Hopkinsville.

AUTO ACCIDENT

Telephone Manager J. D. Russell Painfully Injured.

Mr. J. D. Russell, local manager of the Cumberland Telephone Company, was thrown from an automobile Thursday and badly injured, an ankle being broken and a shoulder dislocated. He was riding with W. C. Anderson, a company inspector, four miles out of town on the Palmyra road. The machine ran into a rut nearly turning over. Mr. Anderson kept his seat and after righting the machine brought Mr. Russell home.

Ismy Sails.

J. Bruce Ismay, managing director of the International Mercantile Marine, sailed for his home in England Thursday on the White Star liner Adriatic. Mr. Ismay said that he was worn out and that there was nothing to add to his testimony regarding the Titanic disaster that he gave before the Senate Investigating Committee.

ENTHUSIASM A GOOD THING

It is the Dull, Prosaic Life, Lived Without Interest, That Ages One.

Take a real live interest in the things about you. Get enthusiastic! It won't hurt you to get quite excited in your enthusiasm once in a while. It is the dull, prosaic life, lived without interest, that ages one. You need a change.

Take some exercise. You need it. Many a woman would like to get out and play with her children, or the neighbors' children, but she is afraid of what the neighbors will say and so she sits indoors and grows old.

Never mind what your neighbors say. Do the things you would like to do and keep your youth. You, and you alone, are the creator of your destiny. It is you who is growing old.

In order to have time for both mental and physical exercise, plan your work carefully in the morning and then avoid hurry, worry and getting frustrated. Learn self-control, and if your well-laid plans seem to be going all awry, take the interruptions coolly. Fold your hands, if necessary, until the interruption is over. Remember there is another day coming. Tomorrow will be better.—Woman's World.

HE SHOWED UP BLACKSTONE

Colorado Justice of the Peace Knew His Business and Cared Not a Rap for Precedents.

A story of the early mining days in Colorado has to do with the self-sufficiency of Patrick Smith, a self-appointed justice of the peace, and the biting wit of a young lawyer, who attempted to defend a man charged with stealing a horse.

The lawyer argued that the fact that the man had the horse was not proof positive that he had stolen it. Justice Smith instantly overruled the point.

The lawyer then read from Blackstone a case identical with the one before the court.

"What do I care for Blackstone or any other lawyer?" cried Justice Smith. "I know the man stole the horse, and I have decided he's guilty. That's enough. I'm judge here."

"Your honor," answered the lawyer, "I know you have decided the case. I read the extract merely to show you what an old fool—"

"What's that?" interrupted the justice, jumping to his feet in a rage.

"Blackstone was," calmly finished the lawyer, while he resumed his seat.—Youth's Companion.

WOMAN SCENE PAINTER.

America has only one woman scenic artist, so far as known. She is Grace Wishar, who undertook her unusual mode of livelihood in a somewhat accidental way. She always had loved painting, but had not been thoroughly grounded in drawing. She had a national talent for color and grouping. One day a scenic artist who had a studio in the same western city as her own had a big contract which he found it impossible to finish in the night of schedule. He made his trouble known to Miss Wishar and she went to his rescue. The work was finished on time. After that the girl worked with that artist for a time and afterward went to New York, where after many fruitless attempts to get work, a well-known scenic painter took her into his workshop.

GOOD MIXER.

He was not quite three, so perhaps he should not be blamed for confusing sacred and profane tradition in his narrative. At any rate, the climax was modern.

"Little Bo-Peep," she looked and looked, but she couldn't find her sheep anywhere—not behind the door, or in the barn, or on the mountains, or anywhere. But just then the good shepherd he came along, and he helped her look and pretty soon he found just one little baby lamb. And where you s'pose? Why, it was in the telephone—and they couldn't get it out!"—Harper's Bazar.

THE REASON.

"The lawyer who drew up the rich old miser's will when the latter disinherited his nephew used to be his barber."

"I suppose that is the reason why

MADE TO SHOW HORSE'S GAIT

Claim of Californian to Be the Originator of Moving Pictures Seems Substantiated.

Probably the man who can claim the greatest credit for moving pictures is Edward Muybridge of Oakland, Cal., who, at the instigation of Governor Leland Stanford of California made countless pictures of the governor's celebrated trotter Occident, the first horse to trot a mile in 2:20 west of the Rocky mountains.

Occident was the pride of the governor's heart, and he engaged Muybridge to photograph him in every conceivable size and shape. In making a series of snapshots of the horse's action, Muybridge was enabled to show the exact motion.

In order to satisfy the governor, he thought of a novel scheme of placing a number of cameras covering at least one-tenth of a mile. From these cameras he stretched threads across the track at about the height of the trotter's knees.

These threads being broken, each camera made a separate, distinct picture of the horse, and by putting them together and riffling from the thumb, the horse could be seen in actual motion.

In 1885 Muybridge sailed for England, and there, in connection with six or seven others, evolved the first moving picture camera. In about 1886 some of these cameras reached America.—Popular Mechanica.

THE REASON

Reggy—Why do you dislike cigarettes?

Kitty—Because they are dangerous.

Reggy—But I have smoked them for ten years and they haven't killed me yet.

Kitty—Yes, I know; and that's one reason I object to them.

ANCIENT WHEAT.

Many years ago a Sutter county (Cal.) farmer named Proper, by following the Burbank method, developed a seed wheat of great value, which was eagerly sought by the San Joaquin grain farmers. But the wheat grown from this seed did not maintain its valuable properties through successive crops. Year by year it lost some of them, until now the Proper wheat is no better than improper wheat. A son of Proper had the forethought to preserve a quantity of wheat harvested from the original crops. He has a lot on hand that is now 25 years old, which he is planting. Will it germinate notwithstanding its advanced age? Why not? Egyptian grain, entombed for 4,000 years in the wrappings of a mummy, yielded abundantly when planted where the waters of the Nile reached it.

AMICABLE ADJUSTMENT.

"Did the Gildes have much trouble in arranging their separation?"

"No. At least not until they reached their child. They have but one child, you know."

"How about the dogs?"

"That was easy. They had two dogs."

"I see. Well, what did they do?"

"Why, Gildes suddenly developed a streak of generosity. He took the child and let his wife have both dogs."

WORSE SLIGHT.

"So your father is very angry with you. It is true that he has cut you?"

"He's done worse than that—he's cut my allowance."

CATTY THING!

Hattie—I have so many callers that, really, I get quite fatigued.

Mattie—Ah! I didn't know you

CATER TO HEALTHY APPETITE

Fingerbowls and Other Luxuries Are Things Unknown to the Southwestern Spread.

Those who cannot eat without a correctly folded napkin, spotless china and silver will do well to avoid the southwestern spread described by E. Eob in Outing. The writer says:

"Eating at a temporary mining camp isn't altogether attractive. The array of blackened lard pails steaming about the hearth, and the ribs of beef, picked nearly bare, on the table, may not at first sight seem alluring. But you'll find that the fre-joles (strong red Mexican beans) and the cold sour doughs, flaked with black from the pan, and the strong tea don't taste so bad after all. Maybe you think you couldn't eat from battered tin plates, with battered black forks that tint the food, amid a litter of saddles, soiled mattresses and rifles. But then, perhaps, you thought you couldn't eat the syrup from which you had picked out flies and ants, or wash in that lard bucket of pale gray mine water the cook has brought."

ENORMOUS POWER OF RADIUM

Scotch Scientist Refuses to Take Chances With Substance Not Thoroughly Analyzed.

In some experiments which Prof. T. Soddy was showing to his class of Glasgow students with radium emanation he carefully corked up the flask containing the gas with the remark that the emanations' physiological effects were imperfectly investigated, and certainly potent, and that he had no personal wish to investigate them.

The amount of gaseous emanation with which he was experimenting was so small that it would have required thirty times as much to fill a bubble the size of a pinhead—or one cubic millimeter. He added that if instead of the thirtieth part of a pinhead full we could obtain a pint of this gas—and to obtain such a quantity half a ton of pure radium would be required—it would radiate the energy of a hundred powerful are amps. Indeed, as Rutherford has said, no vessel would hold it and such a quantity would instantly melt and dispel in vapor any material known.

DICKENS' CHARACTERS HUMAN.

It is true that Dickens can reveal the odiousness of certain varieties of female nature, but he does it without the slightest hint of bias and is equally forcible in so doing with his men. His presentation of women is everywhere governed by this wonderful impersonality and rare balance. They are neither angels nor toys nor slaves. They are simply human beings of the female sex as God has made them. His love scenes are not merely pure and tender, but they are refreshingly sane. And his girls are as varied as his young men. They are self-respecting, or foolish, or sentimental, or capable, or feather-headed, just as we find them today. He shows them no personal favor on his own part, and no disfavor either.—Exchange.

TOO LONG A REACH.

It was a Welsh minister who described the devil to a little congregation in a remote Welsh valley. Said the minister: "The devil is bound round the middle with chains, and round the arms with chains, and round the legs with chains. But John Jones," pointing to a man in the front row, "he can reach you; and you, David Evans," pointing to one in the middle row, "he can reach you," and pointing to one at the back, "John Williams, he can reach you." And then a man in the gallery called out, "Why, the thing might as well be loose."

BAD TASTE.

"Did you send Mr. Dresser the samples he asked for?" inquired the tailor.

"Yes," replied the clerk: "I'm just sending it. Trusting to have your order—"

"What! Cut out that word 'trusting' and make it 'hoping.'—Catholic Standard and Times.

NATURE THE BEST PHYSICIAN
Especially in the Cure of Nervous Diseases, Human Skill Has Been Found of Little Avail.

If an individual, healthy at birth, could be shielded from contact with any but the most suitable of friends, food and influences, a writer in the New York Medical Record supposes such a person would never suffer from neurasthenia, epilepsy or many other diseases that have become common in the onrush of our frenzied civilization. He admits, however, that the result of this excess of care would probably be undeveloped character. "Considering the fundamental importance of providing suitable environment for the sick, and particularly the nervous sick, it is astonishing how we, as a profession, have neglected to recognize environment as a definite therapeutic measure of prime importance." He is of the opinion that three-fourths of the nervous people who come under the specialist's care are restored to health not by any special skill, knowledge or medication, but simply by the advantage of several weeks' residence in a suitable sanatorium. He manfully admits that in such cases nature is the best physician and says that the only way to bring nature to bear on the case is to isolate the nervous, hysterical or hypochondriacal one in a suitable manner for a suitable length of time.

ASSISTANCE IN THE NURSERY.

Some young children suffer at times with a form of sore mouth known as "ulcerative stomatitis," caused sometimes by general ill health, but very often by neglect of proper means for keeping the mouth clean.

The first thing noticed is that the child dribbles profusely, in some cases the saliva pours from the mouth; the breath becomes offensive and on inspection the gums will be found very much inflamed, swollen or spongy.

Soon along the line of contact of the gums with the tooth a yellowish line will be seen, or in other cases distinct yellow spots or tiny ulcers are scattered about in the mouth, under the tongue and on it. The whole mouth is very sore and tender, the gums bleed on the slightest touch and the child will take only the softest food.

If the disease be neglected it may cause the loss of some of the teeth, and therefore treatment should be prompt. An astringent mouth wash is necessary and a solution of alum, five grains to one ounce of boiled water, is a good preparation. The mouth should be washed out with this every two or three hours.

COULDN'T SELL BUT ONCE.

A certain saloon keeper years ago was elected to a state legislature at a time when there was important legislation pending. He accepted a thousand dollars for his vote on a certain measure. The deal was hardly closed when the opposition came round, offering him two thousand. The temptation was strong, but the new member shook his head. "No gentleman as is a gentleman," he said, "will sell out twice on wan proposition!"—Saturday Evening Post.

WASN'T THERE.

Curate—Didn't I assure you that a cow is only dangerous when it has lost its calf?
She—That's why I was frightened; I couldn't see a calf anywhere.

Are You A Woman?
Baltimore, Md.—Mrs. W. H. I. on, at 1419 East Madison street, writes: "For several years, I suffered, off and on, from female troubles, until finally I was taken down and could do nothing. The pains I experienced, I shall never forget. I lost weight till I was only skin and bones. I believe I would have been in my grave, if I had not tried Cardui. I shall praise it as long as I live." Many women, like Mrs. I. on, are weak and discouraged, on account of some painful ailment. Are you one of these sufferers? Cardui will help you. Try it today. Any druggist.

PUBLIC DOCUMENTS AT COST

Those Desiring Them Need Only Address the Proper Official at the National Capital.

No doubt most people interested in useful reading matter will thank us for information, obtained through official sources, as to how public documents can be procured with least trouble and at trifling expense. The idea that prevails most generally, that this class of literature may be secured through the courtesy of members of congress, is correct only in so slight a degree that it had best be corrected. There are nearly five hundred senators and representatives—hence an edition of several thousand copies, if distributed pro rata, gives to each only a few copies. Some of these the senator or representative needs for reference, the few left over are soon exhausted, and those constituents who then write for them are necessarily disappointed, through no fault of the public men whom they may have addressed. Now, as a general proposition, the reader who is interested in a government publication will serve himself best by addressing the official known as the superintendent of documents, government printing office, Washington, D. C., who is authorized to have reprinted any government publication for which there is a demand, and sell the same at cost to all applicants. He will mail price lists, divided by subjects, free upon application, and remittance can then, as required by law authorizing such sales, accompany order.

HER EXCUSE

Mr. Justwed—This coat I'm wearing has had two buttons off of it for a week. You've seen it every day, but you haven't taken the slightest notice of it.
Mrs. Justwed—My dear, love is blind.

WAF OF VIOLET SCENT.

So many inquiries have come to hand respecting a new way of perfuming rooms, that one ventures to describe yet another and more simple novelty which is being used for this purpose, of making rooms fresh and fragrant. This is known as the violet hanger, which consists of a group of dainty little wicker baskets filled with pot pourri of violets and covered with silk. These are strung together on long-hanging ribbons which can be hung in front of a window or door or any place where they catch the breeze, so that the sweet perfume emitted through the wicker work is wafted about the room.

HISTORIC CHARACTER.

An aged colored man in Washington who goes about collecting "old rags, old bottles, old rubbers," etc., is a well-known character. One day recently a citizen asked him his name.

"Mah name's George Washin'ton, sah," replied the old man proudly. "Seems to me I've heard that name before," said the gentleman. "I spec' you-all has," answered the ragman. "I've been collectin' up ole rags and sich roun' dis yer place for more'n thirty years."

LOOCHOOS A PRIMITIVE RACE
Little Known People of Japan Adhere to Their Ancient Customs and Mode of Living.

At Shimri, the ancient capital of the Loochoos, Japan, about two miles from Naha, are the castle and tombs of the old Loochooan kings. The last king, who was made a Japanese marquis at the time of his retirement, still lives here. At Ito-man 7 1/2 miles from Naha, is a colony of several hundred people, who are said to be the descendants of some Portuguese sailors who were wrecked there over four hundred years ago. They are larger than the Loochoosans, and show foreign blood in their features.

The dress of the native Loochoosans, of both sexes and all ages, consists of a single piece garment, which is loosely woven from banana fiber, resembling the cloth from the same material in the Philippines. The design of this cloth varies little, that of the women being uniform and that worn by the men varying only slightly. A few sandals are worn, but no shoes.

Their burial customs are curious. The horseshoe or turtle back shaped tombs, usually located on a hillside facing the water, are elaborate affairs of stone and cement, and their construction must be rather costly.

INTO THE DRAIN, AFTER ALL

Little Circumstance That Explains Why One Woman's Hair Has Turned Gray.

A new servant entered the employment of a matron not long ago, and her genius for making mistakes makes it seem incredible that one just evenly balanced could think out the things she does.

Among other things her mistress handed her a wire strainer and told her to pour all water into the drain through that, so that soap and dirt would not stop up the pipes. By the way, this was after the servant had incurred a good-sized plumber's bill by allowing a full cake of soap to go down.

The servant took the strainer and the mistress watched her while she demonstrated that she knew what was meant by pouring the water through it. When she had turned the water all through and there remained a considerable accumulation that would not go through, she deliberately emptied the strainer into the drain.

Her mistress was surprised and out of patience, and she showed it. "But where else could I put the stuff?" was the only defense the servant offered.

CHINA'S STONE LIBRARIES.

There is a public library of stone in Peking. It is a library of the Kuo Tse Chien, or "School of the Sons of the Empire," an ancient university that existed a thousand years before the Christian era. This library is of stone. On 182 tablets of stone composing it are carved all of the "Thirteen Classics," the summary and essence of all Chinese culture.

In the imperial lecture hall of this Kua Tze Chien the emperor would go once a year to hear a discourse on the responsibilities and duties of his office and would receive reproof and exhortation from the heads of the institution.

The stone library in Peking is only a copy of that in Shi An Fu, in Shensi, which was the capital of the empire.

THE DARDANELLES.

The Dardanelles and the classic "Hellespont" are the same. It was across the Dardanelles that old King Xerxes ferried his mighty hosts during his attempt at the subjugation of Greece, and across which he fled, all "down at the heel," after he had been ignominiously beaten at Salamis, Mycale and Platea. It was in the same waters that Leander and Lord Byron took their famous swims and in which perished "Helle," the daughter of the Theban king, after whom the strait was named.

NATURAL WAY.

"You can't get a word out of those moonshiners."
"But isn't it quite natural to be silent about a still affair?"

NOT SO PAINFUL, THOUGH.

"Corns frequently affect one's gait."
"Rye, too."

After Thirty Years' Experience

With the Buggy trade of this section we have convinced the customer of the importance of considering
WHAT IS UNDER THE PAINT

on a buggy. True, he cannot tell by looking, but the brand and reputation of the maker is a guarantee of what he can expect in the way of service.

As a result purely of experience a man will now come into our show-room, and ask to be shown a Columbus, a Delker, an Anchor or some other of long tried and proven merit,

AFTER ALL HE HAS SEEN UNDER THE PAINT

We have a beautiful line of new and most attractive work to show you, and beg the favor of a visit.

REPORT ON NEXT FRIDAY

Kitty League Players Will Arrive Next Week For Practice.

SEASON OPENS MAY 28.

Several of The Old Favorites Are Coming Back Again.

The opening of the season in the Kitty League is now near at hand and the players are being signed up every day and ordered to report here next Friday May 10. Mike Lyons, Smith, Huhn and several others of the old team are expected. Yon and Johns have not signed contracts, but will no doubt do so as soon as they can be heard from. At least a dozen men will be tried out, some of them highly recommended. The question of a manager is now receiving serious consideration. There is some good material available and the team will line up all right and be in the fight for the pennant again this year.

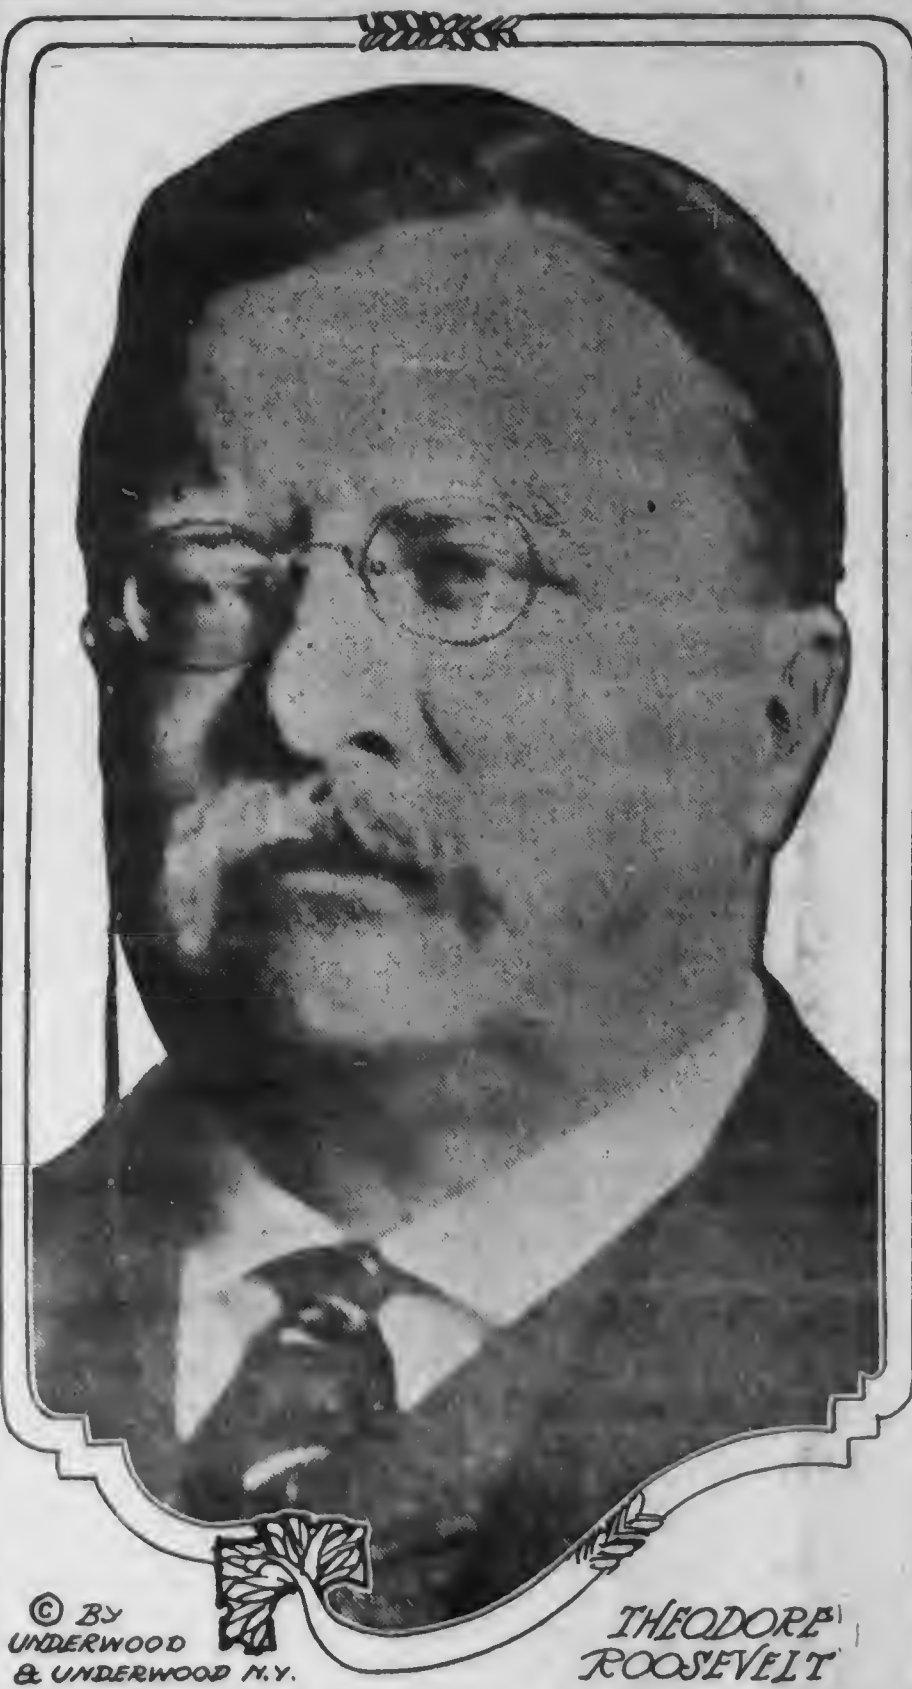

LOCAL MARKET

Loose Sales Good and Some Hogshead Tobacco Disposed Of.

The local tobacco market is steady, with prices unchanged. The loose sales this week were good, but no very fine leaf made its appearance, the sales being made up of the lower grades. Receipts are falling off, now that most of the crop has been delivered. Sampling of the hogshead tobacco is beginning in earnest and the sales for the week embrace several hogsheads of the weed which brought satisfactory prices.

Flagged Train With Shirt.

Tearing his shirt from his back an Ohio man flagged a train and saved it from a wreck, but H. T. Alston, Raleigh, N. C., once prevented a wreck with Electric Bitters. "I was in a terrible plight when I began to use them," he writes, "my stomach, head, back and kidneys were all badly affected and my liver was in bad condition, but four bottles of Electric Bitters made me feel like a new man." A trial will convince you of their matchless merit for any stomach, liver or kidney trouble. Price 50 cents at all drug stores.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT

As soon as Colonel Roosevelt had declared that he would accept the nomination if it were offered him, his admirers in all parts of the country started an active campaign to secure delegates in the convention. The Roosevelt movement is aided by a number of Republican governors and by many persons who formerly were advocates of the nomination of La Follette. The colonel's slogan is that the government must be put again in the hands of the people, and in line with this is his advocacy of a form of recall applied to judicial decisions that affect the people as a whole.

SUCCESS

Was Contest Held at Fairview May 1.

The fiddlers' contest at Fairview Wednesday night was well attended and was enjoyed by lovers of old time music. The entertainment was given under the auspices of the Fairview Commercial Club. Dr. D. H. Erkiletian had charge of the contest. The Hopkinsville trio, Messrs. Randle, Bartley and McCarroll, with Mr. Hancock, of Fairview, guitar accompanist, won the prize offered for the best quartet, and Mr. Randle captured the prize in the individual contest. Jones & Harris won in the duet contest. About a dozen musicians participated.

ALL NEXT WEEK

The Starnes Stock Co. Will Be Here.

The Starnes Stock Company will open a week's engagement here next Monday night, showing in a tent on the Metcalfe lot, near Hotel Latham. There are thirty people in the cast and there will be an entire change of program each night. Popular comedy-dramas will be presented, all clean, moral and refined, catering especially to the ladies and children. This is said to be a most excellent organization and the press notices from points where they have played are very complimentary.

MAY MAGAZINES

National Magazine.

A magnificent airship cover design, reproduced from an oil painting by Arthur Hutchins, features the story "When Wishes Found Wings," in the May National Magazine. A portrait of the late General Frederick Dent Grant makes a striking frontispiece. "Affairs at Washington," by Joe Mitchell Chapple, is more than usually versatile and timely in its resume of Washington news and political causerie. "Our First Treaty With France," by the Hon. Chauncey M. Depew, is a lucid picture of the leading diplomatic event of the Revolutionary Era.

A Companionable Magazine.

The May issue of Lippincott's Magazine is both refreshing and invigorating, well suited to the season of reviving energies. The complete novel (salient feature) is "Their Great Inheritance," a delightful story of Pennsylvania-German life, by Esie Tingmaster, who has already made a name for herself along these lines with her clever short stories. The theme of "Their Great Inheritance" has to do with a quarrel which divides the inhabitants of Raub's Station, an erstwhile placid and peaceful little village, into two warring factions. A relative of both sides, long known as a ne'er-do-weel, is reported by a newspaper to have died and left a fortune to his kin. There is a great to-do in consequence, each side manoeuvring to outwit the other. The story is often intensely funny, sometimes pathetic, always entertaining. The climax is pretty sure to bring a lump into the reader's throat, and you're glad when the quarrel is patched up, for you much prefer to leave such really lovable folk happily situated.

Another important contribution is the first of a series of three hard-hitting articles by Hubert Bruce Fuller, on "How Congress Squanders Our Money." This deals principally with the army and navy expenditures and the pension appropriations.

Gerhart-Campbell.

A wedding which came as a pleasant surprise to many Clarksville friends was that of Mr. I. P. Gerhart and Miss Mamie Campbell. It occurred at St. Andrews Episcopal church, Louisville, Ky., April 30, at 2 p. m. The officiating clergyman was the Rev. Frank M. Hardy. It was witnessed by a few intimate friends living at Louisville.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerhart will make an Eastern trip, after which they will be at home to Clarksville friends. The wedding is the termination of a courtship of more than a year, and was not unexpected by the more intimate friends of Mr. and Mrs. Gerhart. — Lea's Chronicle.
